for a full-time / part-time position.

We are looking for candidates in advanced training or having completed specialist training in pediatrics, with the goal of obtaining a specialty in neonatology.

The position is in a Level I transregional perinatal center with cutting-edge treatment options in interdisciplinary cooperation with the specialties of prenatal diagnostics and fetal therapy (DEGUM III), pediatric surgery, pediatric cardiology, and neuropediatrics. As part of our scientific, clinical focus, you will have the opportunity to work on projects for innovative forms of non-invasive and invasive ventilation for premature and newborn infants, researching the effectiveness of ventilation controls using multimodal signal monitoring, embedded in a research alliance under the auspices of the Mittelhessen Transfer Center (TZM) and the German Center for Lung Research (DZL). Your scientific participation in approved research projects will secure your academic progression, with an opportunity for postdoctorate work.

The UKGM provides health management services for its employees and is certified as a family friendly employer. There is a child care facility at the clinic.

Please note:

Applications can also be sent to the email address indicated. However, no encryption is currently implemented. If you do not wish to use this unencrypted option, we recommend sending your application by mail. The same recommendation applies as a rule if sensitive data is included with your application.

Physicians, researchers, and dentists at the UKGM are researchers and therefore civil servants. Compensation follows the collective agreement for physicians at university clinics for the State of Hesse. Severely disabled applicants of equal qualification will be given preference in accordance with applicable law. To increase the number of women working in scientific fields, we specifically and emphatically request applications from qualified female scientists. Please note that all full-time positions can be shared.

When assuming duties at the Giessen location of the UKGM, regardless of the assigned location, proof of sufficient immunization is required in accordance with §§ 23, 23a IfSG.

Please only send copies of application materials, as these cannot be returned after the selection process has been completed.

We look forward to your application.
